CANDELARIA

LOGLINE

The ,90s. Cuba is drowning in hunger, cigars and rum. In this grim landscape, the life of Candelaria and Victor Hugo, a couple who stayed together out of inertia, takes a surprising turn the day Candelaria finds a video camera.

SYNOPSIS

Havana, 1994. Right when the embargo is at its peak, the Cold War comes to an end and the Soviet Union disintegrates. But the life of CANDELARIA (75), and VÍCTOR HUGO (76) continues at a slow pace. The days are repetitive, conversations are sparse, dinners are sad. But the monotony is broken when Candelaria finds a video camera hidden in the dirty sheets of the hotel where she works. Not sure of what to do with it just yet, she brings it home. This camera, a foreign object to both of them, subtly sneaks into their lives as the couple learns to manipulate it and later to use it to film themselves dancing, kissing and making love. This spark of recovered love helps them forget that one of them is sick. Now, they have each other. Now, everything is life. But one day the camera disappears. Desperate about losing the very thing that brought back joy to his life, Victor Hugo goes to “El Hormiguelo,” a dangerous place in downtown Havana where everything stolen can be found...

DIRECTOR & PRODUCER STATEMENT BY JHONNY HENDRIX

Almost every story that I tell has some kind of relation to me as a person. Someone once said that in order to make a great movie you need to have lived through the story first. It was during my youth when I experienced the happenings that inspired me to work on Candelaria. During the 90ies Colombia was going through turbulent times marked by political instability and drug trafficking but I couldn't care less about these kind of matters because I was deeply in love with an incredible girl named María. When Maria got pregnant and she came up with the idea of moving to Cuba and name our new born child Candelaria, I was emotionally exasperated. But Sadly this never happened. A couple of years ago I got invited to present one of my movies at the Havana film festival when on a small side street in town, I encountered an old lady named Candelaria. It was this old lady, which by coincidence carried the same name as my unborn daughter, who told me her amazing story. A very personal story that coincidentally narrates Cuba's unsettled period after the fall of the Soviet Union.

This story is marked by an unpredictable set of coincidences and is personally linked to the story of my own youth, which is why I am so excited about Candelaria.

BIOGRAPHY AND FILMOGRAPHY DIRECTOR & PRODUCER JHONNY HENDRIX

JHONNY HENDRIX HINESTROZA was born in Quibdó, Columbia in 1975 and is an experienced director and film producer. He is best known for organising the Cali film festival “Cien Milímetros” and founding Antorcha Films, a film production company focused on local content. As a producer, he was involved in several productions including “Dog eat Dog” a movie directed by Carlos Moreno and the German production “Dr. Alemán” by director Tom Schreiber, in which he was the executive producer. Hendrix was also involved in several top-notch Latin-American productions like “En Coma”, “Hiroshima”, “Patas Arriba” and “Sin otoño y sin primavera” which he coproduced and codirected. Among his own movies are the critically acclaimed short film “Cuando llegaron los muchachos” and his masterpiece “Chocó” which was presented at the 2012 edition of the Berlinale festival. Apart from “Candelaria”, Hendrix is also working on two additional projects “Clitoris” and “Saudó”.

CAST

ALDEN KNIGHT is a renowned Cuban actor born in 1936. Knight is active in numerous local TV, theatre and cinema productions and has earned nominations for a variety of awards and won the prestigious Alejo Carpentier-Award, a prize granted by the Cuban government. He is also a lecturer at the Cuban Institute for Radio and Television (ICRT). Alden Knight started his career as a local radio speaker before moving to La Habana to pursue a career as a stage actor in theatres which eventually led him to start acting in television productions and movies. Among his most acclaimed works are “Out of Africa” (1996), “A Woman, a Man, a City” (1978), and “The other Francisco” (1975). In Candelaria, Alden Knight plays the character of Victor-Hugo.

VERONICA LYNN, born in 1931, is a Cuban actress that rose to fame after graduating from the University of Arts of Cuba in La Havana. Initially specialising on stage plays, Lynn started her career performing in small local stages in and around Cuba’s capital city before she made her step towards television and movies. During her years of formation she was a student of the German theatre director and producer Erwin Piscator, which paved her way ahead in the Cuban theatre and movie scene. She has starred in numerous locally produced movies and Latin-American productions including “The beauty of the Alhambra” (1989), selected as the Cuban entry for the 63rd Academy Awards and “La Anunciación” (2009) by the acclaimed Cuban director and producer Enrique Pineda Barnet. Veronica Lynn plays the main role of Candelaria in the movie.

PRODUCCIONES DE LA 5TA AVENIDA

PRODUCCIONES DE LA 5TA AVENIDA is set in Havana, Cuba, and is mainly composed by graduates from the film schools in the country. Our major activity is the production of independent films, in keeping with the need of diversifying and encouraging a space of creation and collaboration among Latin American, and especially Cuban, filmmakers. Our intention is channeling bold and fresh projects with lively and effective production formulae, which would allow the placing in the international market of films that would otherwise be very difficult to make.

Among our most recent productions we have the fiction feature film JUAN DE LOS MUERTOS, directed by Alejandro Brugués and winner of the GOYA Award to the Best Latin American Film in 2013, the documentary feature HABANA MUDA, by Eric Brach, a finalist in the prestigious Amsterdam International Documentary Film Festival, and MELAZA, opera prima by young filmmaker Carlos Lechuga, internationally
